

Watching Men on religious TV channels Forbidden for women!

Human being has not had any equipment such as TV and satellite channels, etc in the centuries and even in the time of Prophet Muhammad, but he managed to continue his life.

The newest Fatwa released by Wahhabism Forbids women from watching men in TV religious channels, Shi'a Online reports.

“Abdul-Karim al-Khazir” a board member of Saudi Arabia Ulama Association, states in his new fatwa: “In my opinion, it is better not to have religious satellite channels at home since women must not watch men in these channels.

A Muslim should choose among two harmful acts, the one which is less harmful. I agree that deleting religious channels from families brings about loss, but this loss is less harmful than having men watched by women in these channels and committing Haram (what is forbidden by god).”

This Wahhabi figure went on further to prove his sentence: Human being has not had any equipment such as TV and satellite channels, etc in the centuries and even in the time of Prophet Muhammad, but he has continued his life. So if these equipments don't exist anymore nothing will happen except that our women will be healthier.

He adds: “despite the fact that these religious channels cast programs on Islam, Quran and Hadith, it is better that instead of using them, people refer directly to Quran and Hadith books as they did traditionally.
